2005 Priorities

■ Education

Our kids deserve the best schools with the best teachers. I will not support a state budget that fails to make funding education our top priority. I'm also working to expand workforce training opportunities at our community and technical colleges.

■ Making government work better

I pledged to support independent performance audits for all of state government. I helped sponsor a law to do exactly that. The House passed it 74 to 22! This is an important first step to greater government accountability.

■ Affordable Health Care

We can increase access to affordable health care by addressing soaring costs for medical malpractice insurance, prescription drugs and small-business health insurance. This is a critical priority for Washington and our local communities.

■ Helping small businesses create jobs

Small businesses need help to create jobs. I'm helping to sponsor a package of small business tax-relief measures to reduce regulatory burdens on small businesses. They are the backbone of our economy and should be encouraged to innovate and expand.

■ Improving transportation

We can save time and lives by upgrading safety on S.R. 203, widening S.R. 202, and securing state funding for the S.R. 520 bridge and other traffic choke points in the district. I'm happy to report the long-awaited project to widen S.R. 202 has finally begun!

■ Oppose salary hikes for legislators

I urged the Washington salary commission to reject proposed salary increases for legislators. Legislators shouldn't get raises when we have denied salary increases for teachers and home health care workers.

■ Larry's Committees:

Housing, Vice-chair; Capital Budget; Judiciary
